Description

Healthcare City is a startups incubator for the health and wellness area and our main goal is to help our startups launching their products or services in the global market. For this, the startups can count on the support of our multidisciplinary operational team, with people with backgrounds ranging from business to medicine and biology, our network of mentors and specially our Founders. And this is where we differentiate ourselves from other incubators: we are not only the first incubator in Portugal to be specialized in healthcare and well-being but we also have the industry with us. Healthcare City was born out of a partnership between Nova Medical School of the New University of Lisbon, Janssen Cilag of the Johnson and Johnson group of families, Médis of the Ocidental group and Lusiadas of the AMIL and United Health groups. Our main goal was to overcome one of the biggest difficulties startups face, which is accessing the market. By having the industry within our incubator, we are able to help startups testing market closely and sell their products through our Founders' own sales structure.
